Strike authorization, pay and what comes next.
Then, time for your questions.

The vote gives our bargaining team authority

Our vote

Members authorize our team to call a strike.

- Our bargaining team has authorized a strike. Today: strike declaration.
- Planned start: Monday, Sept. 28. Our goal remains a fair contract.

Quick FAQ: participation and protection

USSE is management's source. SEIU 503 is our union's source.

Who can strike?

USSE includes SEIU bargaining-unit workers, including trial-service staff.

What about retaliation?

SEIU 503 says retaliation for protected union activity is unlawful. Report it promptly.

What can we do on a line?

Picket, carry signs and leaflet. Keep entrances and traffic clear.

What if I need support?

Talk privately with our organizer about access needs or your individual situation.

Follow our bargaining team's instructions and stay connected with coworkers.

Quick FAQ: leave, insurance and income

A few answers are published. Individual benefit questions need follow-up.

Can I use paid leave?

USSE restricts paid leave during a strike.
Check your situation before relying on it.

Unemployment benefits?

USSE says lawful strikers may file. Filing does not guarantee payment.

What about health insurance?

Ask our organizer and OSU Benefits about your coverage and premium requirements.

When does strike pay arrive?

Confirm the current payment schedule and application steps with our union.

Bring your questions. We will record anything that needs a confirmed answer.

We prepare together

Before Sept. 28

Our next steps at OSU

- Confirm your personal contact information and watch our union's updates.
- Plan your picket participation. Raise support needs with our organizer early.
